

We're looking for a few amazing individuals or groups to run book drives in 2021. Is your community up to the challenge?

DO YOU HAVE BOOKS TO SHARE?

Maybe, with some friends, more than a few?
We'd love to partner with you on a book drive to help keep our community libraries full!

Hi Friends!

My name is Josie Dunlap and I'm from Marietta, Georgia. My project, Kids Books in Nooks, is building libraries and bringing books to kids who would not have had access to them without the locations I'm building due to financial/housing/transportation obstacles.

As part of the project, I'm setting up book drives throughout 2021 to help keep our kids community library locations stocked with fresh books. My continuity partner (Read4Unity) is going to work with the book drive hosts to distribute them.

The book drive hosts would host either a one day event to collect the books or would run a book drive over a set period. Once they are done collecting the books, Read4Unity will arrange to gather the books from the event hosts and distribute them to libraries across metro-Atlanta.

If you, your troop, organization you work for or volunteer with would be willing to host a book drive (in partnership with our continuity partner Read 4 Unity), can you let me know by adding your information to one of the interest forms below?

By adding your name, you're just expressing an interest in the project. There's no commitment right now. I'll follow up later this month or early November with more details (including a how-to guide which will walk you through the process & help keep it really easy for you to run) and to (loosely) schedule your drive dates.

If you're part of a Girl Scouts group (or a troop leader!), the guide will also have information on how to use this service project to meet badge/journey requirements.

I'll take planning off your plate, you'll collect books your girls' and their friends were probably going to donate anyway and kids who don't have access to books will get them.
